Welcome to Trondheim!

Norway’s first capital city, founded by Viking King Olav Trygvason back in 997. Trondheim holds a special place in Norwegian history and culture, and is still the place where new kings receive ceremonial blessing. The city on the south shore of the Trondheimsfjord is the third largest city in Norway with a population of 180,000.

Today Trondheim boasts a thriving combination of science, research and business communities, giving you a city that has the charm and intimacy of the small town, and the many choices of big-city life. Enjoy a wide variety of cultural, historical and recreational activities during your stay!
